At the Big Blue Door

Mia and Leo stood at the big blue door with their backpacks on. Mia's was yellow. Leo's was red. "What do you think is in there?" Mia whispered. Leo shrugged. "Only one way to find out."

Oh! So Many Things

They pushed the door open together, and oh! The classroom was full of the most interesting things — long stripes of sunlight, tiny chairs in every color, and three orange fish going round and round.

The Biggest Block First

Leo stacked the blocks up, up, up — and whomp! — they tumbled down. "Can I try?" asked a small voice. It was Bea. Leo handed her the biggest block first, because big ones are the best ones to start with.

Leaning In at Story Time

At story time, everyone sat on the soft rug near the fish tank. Miss Plum read a book about a bear who found a hat, and all the children leaned in to look at every page.

See You Tomorrow, Stripe Fish

When the story was done, Mia looked over at the fish tank one more time. The fish with the little white stripe was still going round and round. "See you tomorrow, stripe fish," she said quietly. And she was already sure she would.
